ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Jan. 4.—Charles Grant of Boston, one of the American known to have been on board the British steamship Persia when she was torpedoed in the Mediterranean last Thursday, has arrived in Alexandria. Mr. Grant, so far as is known, is the only American from the Persia's sinking. He gave to the Associated Press today the most detailed account yet received of the disaster.

"I was in the dining saloon of the Persia at 10 P. M.," he said, "I had just finished my soup and the steward was asking what I would take for my second course when a terrific explosion occurred. The saloon became filled with smoke, broken glass and steam from the boilers, which appeared to have burst. There was no panic on board. We went on deck as though we were at drill, and reported at the lifeboats. The water around the ship was black as ink. The Persia was listing to starboard and the water was rising. I clung to the railing. The last thing I saw was the Captain's lifeboat.

"As the vessel was listing so badly that it was impossible to launch the starboard boats, I slid down the starboard rail into the water. I got caught in a rope which pulled off a shoe, but I broke loose and climbed on some floating wreckage, to which I clung.

"The last I saw of the Persia she had her bow in the air five minutes after the explosion. I floated on the wreckage until 4 o'clock in the morning. I saw five boats. I was pulled into one of them. We had about 100 men looking for other stragglers.

"The boats became overloaded and the occupants were crowded together. Four boats were tied together by their painters and the fifth followed some distance away.

"My boat left the others in order to search the more frequented steamship channels for help. We roved for three hours. Then we saw a cruiser and called out. We were picked up. We explained that we were survivors of the Persia and gave directions to the cruiser. They were soon found and the occupants taken off immediately by the British sailors.

"Robert S. Newell, American consul at Athen, sat at the same table with me on the voyage. He was not present because his cabin was on the port side.

"It was a horrible scene. The water was black as ink. Some passengers were screaming. Others were calling out. There was one boat singing hymns."

WILSON WILL ACT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Official announcement that the government will act in the present phase of the sinking of the Persia was made today at the White House.

Secretary Taft issued this statement for the President:

"The President and the Secretary of State are taking every means possible to obtain the full facts in this grave matter and will not act just so soon as the information is obtained."

In the absence of details and special information which will be made in the next step, President Wilson cancelled the Cabinet meeting which was to have been held today, but conferred with Chairman Moore and some members of the Senate foreign relations committee. Chairman Moore told the President there were intimations that some senators were preparing to make speeches on the sinking of ships with loss of American lives. The President is understood to have simply replied that the administration was doing all it could to protect American rights.

The President instructed Secretary Lansing to bring immediately to the White House any new information which came to hand, and then busied himself reading the official dispatches so far received and getting in touch generally with the situation.

The administration is depending largely on the inquiries which Ambassador Paulding has been instructed to make at Vienna and that which consuls are gathering elsewhere to establish the nationality of the submarine which is said to have sunk the Persia, and to develop the facts in the case generally.

a Day Session, in Which Superin-

The election of Dr. Katherine Wakefield, as medical inspector, and the decision not to establish a continuation school here were the outstanding features of the regular January session of School Board last night.

Dr. Wakefield was elected at a salary of $75 a month for the remaining two months of the school term, she having agreed to accept the position and devote all the time necessary to that duty.

Former Superintendent S. F. Ashe told the directors that it had been found impossible to get all the local physicians to serve as a medical inspection committee and examine the pupils free of charge, as in 1915, hence the only solution of the problem was to employ a paid inspector.

He declared that Dr. Samuel G. Dixon of the State Board of Health had written within three weeks to ask why no medical inspection was being conducted. Dr. Wakefield is to first examine the pupils suspected to be defective, and the apparently normal children afterward.

Investigation by the superintendent having shown that there are but 17 boys and girls under 16 years of age in the city, he recommended that no continuation school under the new child labor law be established.

The state suggested that this course be taken where there were less than 20 pupils. The 17 pupils may continue to work.

Ralph A. Jenkins, a teacher in the high school at Hudson, Mass., was elected physics teacher at a salary of $100 a month, succeeding George A. Lathrop. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts College of Science and Technology, and has been successful in his work at all these places, and is a member of the American Association of Physics Teachers.

SAFETY STANDARD*New Law Covering Mine

Nakes Little Change.*CERTIFICATES TO BE REQUIRED*Amendment Passed to Validate the Advantage of by Few Operators;

"Safety First" Is Still the Slogan.

Although mine operators of Pennsylvania are no longer required by law to employ mine foremen and fire bosses holding state certificates, it is stated that few operators will take advantage of the amendment to the law made to validate the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act. The new law, which became effective the first of this year, now gives the operator authority to employ whom he pleases in the capacity of mine foremen and fire bosses. Until this change was made, only persons holding state certificates could be employed.

Inquiry among the larger operators of the region develops the fact that the change in the law will have no practical effect. They did not propose to take advantage of the law by employing persons without certificates. Safety First is still the ruling spirit of the coke region.

When the workmen's compensation law was framed it was pointed out that miners could not be brought under its provisions unless the appointment of mine foremen and fire bosses remained with the state. In order that the miners might share the benefits of the law, the appointment of these important officials would be left entirely to the operator. It was feared that some operators there would be no more state examinations for certificates. This is not correct.

It is said that the various state mine inspectors will hold the usual examinations this year for mine foremen and fire bosses certificates, and some of those having only a few inside employees. The old law required that a mine foreman, holding a state certificate, be present at every mine where ten or more men were employed inside during a day of 24 hours. There was also a provision that provided that a mine foreman, serving as mine foreman, be present at every mine where ten or more men were employed inside during a day of 24 hours. IF 300 FAT GET MORE FRESH AIR

The Moderate in Your Diet and Less of Your Weight. With Lack of fresh air, weakens the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the face is destroyed. Fat put on by indoor life is unhealthy and if nature is not assisted in throwing it off by increasing the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, a serious case of obesity may result. When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once. Don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden of unhealth and unwhimsy fat. Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air; breathe deeply and get from any drugstore a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Take one after each meal and one before retiring at night. Wash yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of korelin is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps the liver and is designed to increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight. There is nothing better. A. A. Clarke—Adv.

To Break up a Cold

Into a pitcher, put a tablespoonful of butter, a quarter of a cup of light brown sugar, ounce of fresh whole almonds, the juice of one orange and one lemon and a pint of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Let the butter, sugar, almonds and lemon juice stand for half an hour, then add a half pint of boiling water. Stir well before serving. The juice of the orange and lemon, last of all, to be served in a wide glass.

This drink is particularly wholesome, appetizing and strengthening, especially in cold weather. Prompt action on such occasions, in administering a pure stimulant, like Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, so pleasantly combined with a wide glass of cold, and perhaps ward off more serious attacks of bronchitis or pneumonia.

SCOTTDALE COUNCIL ORGANIZES; BUTLER IS NAMED PRESIDENT

VERY FEW CHANGES ARE MADE

Tabernaule Campaign Will Be Resumed This Evening; Four Mills Again Operating at the Sheet Mill; News of Interest in Mill Town.

Special to The Courier, SCOTTDALE, Jan. 4.—Scottdale Borough Council met last evening for organization, with a number of spectators present to witness the induction of the new members into office. J. E. Fineman, re-elected from the First ward, A. E. Collins, re-elected from the Second ward, Frank Horne, a new member from the Third ward and John Rutherford, a new member from the Fourth ward, were sworn into office.

Through the skill of Borough Attorney P. H. Polk the tangle which arose at the last election when candidates were voted on in the First and Fourth wards for four year terms and two year terms, instead of four being it prior selection for a four year term, was disposed of very nicely. Mr. Polk and Carl H. Culler of the First ward and C. W. Cunningham and W. A. White of the Fourth ward sent in written resignations. In this way the slate was cleared and council was left free to appoint members to fill the vacancies. By common consent was waived the courtesy of members from the wards in question naming their preferences, and J. E. Fineman of the Second ward named Mr. Culler for the First ward vacancy and Mr. Collins also of that ward named Mr. Rutherford for the Fourth ward vacancy. These men were duly elected and Chief Frank McCudden was delegated to bring them to the council chamber where they were sworn in and took their seats as members.

President William Butler and Secretary, P. M. Newhouse were made the temporary chairman and secretary, and were afterward elected to these positions. Attorney P. H. Polk, was again elected borough attorney, and C. E. Gibson borough engineer and street commissioner. Chief of Police McCudden was the only applicant for that position, and after a little bantering of the ruling, he was elected by acclamation. There were four applicants for patrolman, Austin Hyde and J. E. Hite, the present incumbents, H. D. Fath, a former officer on the force, and W. H. Knox, a new applicant. The two patrolmen were elected as usually done by the council, all four being in nomination, and each member, as his name was called, answering with the names of the two men of his preference. "Hyde and Hite" and "Fath and Knox" were the answers. The members then read material to select from but were not disposed to make any change. Harry Laughrey was once more elected treasurer, a place he has held for several years, and J. E. Kuhns, the only applicant, was elected weighmaster and junior, also by acclamation.

The members present were R. J. Fineman, H. G. Marx and C. H. Culler, First ward; A. E. Collins, P. H. Hardy and John Clark, Second ward; Ralph G. Stoner, Robert D. Verey and Frank Horne, Third ward; and William Butler, Charles W. Cunningham and John W. Rutherford, Fourth ward.

RESUME TONIGHT

The tabernaule campaign under Evangelist George T. Stephens resumes tonight at 7:30 in the big frame structure in Leukus Park. The size of the crowd on Sunday, the opening evening, has been much commented on. The party and the ministers in their meeting at the Y. M. C. A. building on Monday felt that it showed a good lively interest, and the prospects. The evangelist said he was surprised at the interest that the churches manifest at the start, and the cordial way in which the party was received throughout the town, as they were going about the streets on Monday. This is United Brethren.

ITCHING BURNING WATER BLISTERS

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little girl's trouble began by her head coming out in small water blisters, and when they would burst, wherever the water would touch, it would form a sore part and there would soon be a scale on it, and so on until the whole head was a terrible sight. My little boy was affected with the trouble and in a few days was broken out all over his body. My daughter was annoyed very much and my little boy was continually scratching. They had the trouble's mouth and it was very bad, itching and burning and they both were awake nights."

"Heaven's name! Cuticura Soap and Ointment had done for my two other children I made up my mind to try them. In six weeks they were entirely healed. (Signed) Mrs. Thomas Webb, 310 Hildale Ave., Edinburg, Pa., Oct. 20, 1915.

CHAPTER III.

"They Ain't No Such Things!"

It was raining pitchforks.

Across the river, through the opalescent blur, one could see the old sea-waters piling up on the point, just a little farther each time, for a wild sea was running in from the lake.

You could hear the waves roar as they broke against the granite promontory, miles away. Sometimes there would be nothing but patches on the river's face—where the wind spitefully slashed down the mile. One or two hardy souls were fishing hopelessly about the mainland ledges, where there was a bit of lee. The knowing fishermen, however, saved his bait.

The bass by now were all out in deep water, for the black fellow doesn't like the sea-slick rollers any more than his hunter does. Besides, what was more important, bait had left the shallow and gone out of the reach of the mud.

It was a day for poker, the telling of tales or reading and snoring or tuckering in the boat-house.

And tuckering in the boat-house was precisely what Uncle Billy was doing. Ranged along the top of his work-shelf were dozens of spark plugs. Next to bringing home a four pounder he liked to tuck in. His attitude and outlook were identical to those of the village doctor—no matter how well you looked or felt, something wrong could be found going on in your insides.

"Search me," said a voice from the rear doorway.

"By Jingo—Uncle Billy wiped his fingers on a piece of waste and trotted to the door. 'I didn't know they was no such thing as a greenie! How are you, Mr. Cranford? What's a' goin' here?' 'S cranford? Well, well, I livin' gals outside. Bawlin' barb wire 'n' pitchforks. No bass in shaller water to be sure. We'll try tuckin' dock 'n' nobble 'th' wreck in steel bay. Oh, pshaw! I can't row you, Mr. Cranford. Got a party. No iden how long she's goin' t' stay neither. Why d'n't y' write me?"

"Och, at a time, Billy, one at a time. Go back to your work. I'll be right in. I know when I've provided about and kind of soaked this picture into my soul."

He had come across late, through the high grass, and the very skew-whiff of the wet leather on his feet was music, an obligation, to the slap-slap, slap-slap of the river which appeared over and about the runway sloping down from the boat-house doors.

This was air, washed clean, clear from the heavens, undebated by smoke or dust or contact with living things, nectarous, God's own.

He leaned against the jamb, breathing, breathing, with a little smack of his lips just before he let the breath go. He wanted the good of it in his veins, in his marrow. In another day he would forget that he had ever been anything but an outdoor man, of simple habits, simple thoughts.

How well he knew every nook and corner of these wonderful waters! Europe, Asia, Africa, and the south sea isles, North and South America, he knew, but none of them called like this quiet but rugged spot. Often while sitting on the balconies or verandas of notable foreign hotels his thoughts had substituted the distance.

He could see boat after boat coming in toward evening, the catch thrown carelessly on the dock; he could hear the banter of the bronzed guides, the grating of the barometer and the hotel bartender's polite "Well, what luck today, sir?"

Uncle Billy, vainly pretending to squint at the business end of a spark plug held between his eyes and the light, watched his young friend correctly.

"Didn't look as fit as usual. Been staying up late and lying abed mornings. Two or three days on the water would take that look out of his face."

"Lester in from Reed's?" asked Cranford presently.

"Yeruddy."

"Any one got him?"

"Nope. I'll have him around at the hotel after supper. He'll be tickled t' death t' row you. He's in luck. Two good fishermen in one season. He's the best guide up here. Mighty good o' you t' wick t' me all these years. But y' see, it don't make no difference t' you who rows. You know where t' go 'n' how t' fish, 'n' when you don't git 'em nobody does."

Cranford laughed, and instantly it occurred to him that this was the first time he had laughed heartily in months.

"See, Lester's a borned guide. What he don't know 'bout birds 'n' fish—Why, the game commissioners could go t' school with him 'n' learn a bull lot. Bring 'th' game?"

"Yes."

"Was in the lake, you are rowing?"

Uncle Billy laid down the spark plug gently. "You'll think I'm studdin' you, but I ain't. Mr. Cranford. Say, I'd like t' see you 'n' her in th' some boat on a day when they ain't blar' face."

"Oh-ho! Off with the old love, on with the new! Do you mean to tell me that you have at last found a woman who knows how to strike a bang?"

"Guess so. Only woman I ever see who gits 'em out at Pidgein. An' when she strikes 'em she ain't makin' no effort t' blar' 'em down t' Oawego."

Cranford shouted, "Billy, you're good for my soul."

"An' you're good for sore eyes, Mr. Cranford. Fished you when y' wore short pants. Your paw was some fisherman, I tell you!"

"It was a good man to his son, Billy."

Cranford stepped away from the gasolene tank and reached under his raincoat for his pipe. He sat down on a soap box at Uncle Billy's side and smoked for awhile in silence.

"What's she look like?"

"Och! I'm tickled. Uncle Billy. I don't know what you'd call her, seein' 's you've seen all kinds o' purty women in your meddle. She ain't more 'n' twenty-two. Her name's Wynne. An' there y' be. Nobody knows nuthin' more—where she comes from, who'er folks be, 'n' all that. She's stayin' out at th' farm. She ain't one o' them sassy folks, 'cause she ain't got no lug."

"Jes' a easy t' git along with 's you are. Why, say? I fished a man in June who let his sinker rest on bottom all th' time, 'n' cussed me 'cause we didn't git no bass for shore dinner. Honest!"

"Is she pretty?"

Cranford slipped up into the sun bitten, wind lifted face. "Well?"

"Up-top!"

Cranford stood up, while Uncle Billy reached hurriedly for the waste, wiping his hands on it thoroughly, with a finishing scrape along the sides of his grease stained, paint stained jumpers.

The latch clicked, the rear door opened and a young woman entered.

Her raincoat sparkled and gashed, tendrils of rain-drenched hair straggled down her cheeks from under an ordinary sou'wester, her heavy tan coat oiled from lace to sole and a diminutive raincoat patterned down from the hem of the coat.

"You, Miss Wynne, in all this rain?" gasped Uncle Billy.

"Gone in for the mail and something to read. Oh, I beg your pardon!" Cranford's pipe, with its smoldering coal, went into a pocket; his hat off his head.

A Diana, additive to the modest, health and beauty were written in every line of her face, with a hint of distinction and breeding in the calm, unfurrowed eyes.

"This is Mr. Cranford I was tellin' you 'bout, Miss Wynne." Uncle Billy's wave of the hand was meant for an introduction.

That Cranford and the young woman might be at the police socially did not trouble him. He would have presented a stevedore to a grand duchess, happen they both stopped long enough in his boat-house.

"I'm pleased to meet you, Mr. Cranford."

She did not offer her hand, but she was as quick to read distinction and breeding as he was. "I feel as if I'd been poaching. Uncle Billy—how oddly the name sounded from her lips!"

"Has been your guide so long that you will not enjoy the sport without him."

"Don't you let that worry y' none, Miss Wynne. I've fished with you 'n' outwitted me any day in th' week. 'N' between you 'n' me 'n' th' raincoat, he'd rather have 'em. Uncle Billy."

"That's what I meant, Billy: we've just been dreamin'. I've fished up here, as you say, twenty years, and I never heard any other woman say so much in so little. And if you say she knows the game that's enough. Born at sea. Did you hear her say that?"

Uncle Billy nodded.

"It's more 'n' I've fished th' hull week. No wonder she ain't afraid o' Pidgein 'n' Oawego. But that ain't it."

"What's that?"

"Th' thing that gits me she ain't never been up here before. I didn't hear 'er say that. An' th' first thing she said t' you, when you was without Pidgein 'n' Oawego, was 'I ain't afraid o' Pidgein 'n' Oawego. But that ain't it.'"

"Mr. Cranford, I've married thirty years."

"What's that got to do with it?"

"Don't say none with it. She wanted t' go t' Pidgein. T' Pidgein she goes. You needn't worry. I ain't

"Billy, I'd rather have Lester than any one besides you."

The girl laughed freely. Music. She walked to the runway and peered out. "It will be clear by sunset."

Uncle Billy looked at Cranford as if to say: "There! What's that to you?"

"The rain will wear down the wind. I shouldn't be surprised if we had fat water tomorrow. 'How about bolt?'"

"Pledge in th' car at th' big boat-house. We'll jee half t' fish Pidgein. They won't be ashore, 'cept in deep water."

"Kora have fished Pidgein, Miss Wynne?"

"Yes, and I dare say you have, many times."

"Since I was fifteen, when we had to row there."

"Twenty years ago," supplemented Uncle Billy, signing familiarly.

"That's a fine way to treat a friend!" exclaimed Cranford. "Telling my age like that!"

Another ripple of laughter from the girl.

"Have you noted the variety of currents out there?" she asked. "One day you can fish straight down the lodge; another, the line forms a curve back to the shore, and again you can't do anything but ride up and down the bar."

"Pledge in all right in July and August, but this time of year the wind blows from all points of the compass in a day, and again you can't do anything but ride up and down the bar."

"I'm not afraid," she replied to this open warning, which was only an echo of Uncle Billy's.

Her chin stood out a little.

"I love it out at Pidgein. It is wild and free there. If a gale comes up one cannot run back to the hotel—nothing else to do but fight it out. I was born at sea."

She turned her face toward the river again.

"Hey! Mr. Cranford, I smell sunburn!"

"What a terrible thing forgetfulness!" observed the girl gravely, though her eyes twinkled. "And I have been used to tobacco smoke for several years."

"It's mighty good of you not to laugh," said Cranford, with a rueful look on his face. "That's my favorite pipe, and it will take three or four days to smoke it again."

"Live 'n' fish," Uncle Billy said, sweeping up his spark plugs and dumping them into a box.

He then reached under the bench into a mail and brought forth a handful of soaked jumpers, which he handed to the girl, who slipped them on and immediately there were sounds of splashing, moderate and vigorous, which are permitted only among truly democratic individuals.

It was the final stroke. It seemed more than the girl could bear. She slipped more and more, the polished phrases of social diplomacy could have been more than casual acquaintances.

At length Miss Wynne announced that she must be going.

They were waiting for her at the large post-office. Cranford held the door for her. She smiled and nodded. Alone outside, the rain drumming on the roof, Cranford let the sound of her feet go overhead.

"Cranford! I must be very careful. Why is he here at this time? And I am so alone—so alone!"

She stepped forward resolutely, as one born to the sea, and heaved, dark, grassy swish and slipped about her shoes.

When she reached the wooden sidewalk she paused for a moment to stamp her feet, then hurried on into the village.

"Well?" said Uncle Billy triumphantly.

DIVISION OPERATOR IS RESTORED TO THE CONNELLSVILLE END

H. B. Piggman Resumes Job
That Was Abolished a Year Ago.

THE DISPATCHERS MOVE UP

Car Supply Shows Signs of Improvement; Divisional Safety Meeting Held; Other News of Interest to the Railroad Men of Community.

Another change has been made in the officials of the Conneltsville division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, effective January 1, H. B. Piggman, is made division operator, with headquarters here. This is an old position on the division, but less than a year ago during a slump it was abolished, and Mr. Piggman was dropped to the position of first trick main line dispatcher.

The duties of the division operator here were combined with those of C. W. C. Easton, who was in charge of the division at the time of the combination. He was recently promoted to the position of division operator on the Conneltsville division.

The promotion of Mr. Piggman meant a general move up in the train dispatchers' office and Mr. J. K. Karpman has been given the first trick. Mr. H. Hoover captured the second and C. D. Gates, extra dispatcher, gets the third trick.

BETTER CAR SUPPLY.
Although the Baltimore & Ohio railroad now has a better supply of coal cars than there was a time during the recent shortage when there were 15,000 of its cars off the road, without any foreign cars on its line to make up the deficit.

The supply has about been equal to the demand for the last week and it does not matter much when the other roads take cars when there is no pressure on the Baltimore & Ohio line. It is impossible to keep the coal cars on Baltimore & Ohio lines on the coast in ships to other territory. These lines make use of them for a few weeks before returning them. The cars are even allowed to lay on docks loaded, while coke cars, of which there is a 100% supply, are unloaded the same day they are run onto the tracks of the consumer. Very few coke cars go on the Baltimore & Ohio line. The plan for distributing and using of coke cars is so efficient that the same cars are sometimes used two or three times a week. A coke car can be run into the sidings of a plant at midnight and is ready for delivery the next day by 3 o'clock.

SAFETY MEETING HELD.
The monthly safety meeting of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad employees of the Conneltsville division was held yesterday morning in the Hyndman building, 14 South Main, where is connected with the safety department at Baltimore, was discussed safety methods with the employees. Committees were appointed to represent the different departments. A safety meeting is held monthly in each division and much interest is being aroused by the employees. Methods of working safely in all departments is discussed and the employees voice their own opinions as to how these methods should be worked out.

CRACKMAN IS KILLED.
Standing on the back end of a box car in the Baltimore & Ohio yards at Cumberland, Saturday morning, Stewart Vincent, a crackman, was thrown beneath the wheels and crushed to death when a shifting engine unexpectedly hit the string of cars. His back was broken and the leg crushed. He lived in Cumberland, having worked in the yards for 10 years.

CUMBERLAND IMPROVEMENTS.
The Western Maryland railroad, in cooperation with the Cumberland & Pennsylvania railroad, is making big improvements near Cumberland. A big bridge has been built across Georges creek. Also the road has built a new siding running along the creek into Westernport and several new tracks have been laid.

HEADLIGHT FLASHES.

P. F. Tierney, Baltimore & Ohio inspector, is along the Indian Creek valley today inspecting and looking after the new line which will be used along the new third track that is being laid to Indian Creek.

Bert Miller, a machinist helper in the Baltimore & Ohio shops, is back at work again after being off on account of sickness.

The Western Maryland railroad is dispatching engines west on their westbound freight traffic. The eastbound traffic is heavy but there are only a few trains coming west. A train went west Sunday with three engines, two of them deadheading.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad almost got their refrigerator train going west out of here on time Sunday afternoon. The train is usually several hours late but it left yesterday only shortly behind schedule time.

While walking along the Western Maryland tracks Sunday afternoon about one-half mile above Ohioville, Charles Trester discovered a big rock lying across the track. He obtained the company immediately and it was removed. It weighed about six tons.

S. H. Wells, a former Baltimore & Ohio relief agent here but now of Baltimore, was in town Saturday.

HOW FAMOUS ACTRESSES BANISH SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

Betty Lorraine, the popular actress who won fame in "The Little Parisienne" and other comedies, writes: "Theatrical women are now using a remarkable prescription that acts like magic in curing all trace of unsightly hair growth. It is Mrs. Osgood's Wonder. Unlike the electric needle, it can be used with perfect safety. Unlike evil-smelling depilatories it doesn't burn the skin. I used it first over a year ago and have not had a trace of superfluous hair since."

Mrs. Osgood's Wonder is quite inexpensive and is sold by Loughrey Drug Co. and other up-to-date drug stores. Signed Money-Back Guarantee in every package.

"The Store With the New Styles First"
An Eighth of a Rug at Less Than a Seventeenth Price

SOUNDS VERY ODD, WE KNOW. And it is odd. But these are odd Rugs—odd in their very nature, odd in their beauty, odd in their quality—and decidedly odd in price. They are salesman's samples of beautiful ROYAL-KA-SHAN RUGS. Each sample constitutes exactly one-eighth of a regular 9x12 Rug. The large Rugs sell for $60.—so each sample is worth exactly $7.50. But as a leading feature we offer them for only $3.50. Used extensively as small Rugs by those who appreciate rare quality and beauty above everything else. Each Rug is 72 inches long, 27 inches wide, and is serged at both ends. The prettiest patterns and faintest colorings we have seen for many a day. Only 25 in the lot—scarcely enough for thrifty buyers who know what to buy and when and where to buy it.
